Book Description

This book focuses on the documentation, preservation and enhancement of old paved walkways and trails of the island of Tinos. These walkways are intrinsically related to the history of the island, forming an elaborate communication and transfer network linking the villages of the island with agricultural areas and farming facilities. Today, this network of trails is an attractive way to become acquainted with the history, culture and physical beauty of the island of Tinos. The book contains information about 12 suggested trails across the island and is richly illustrated.
